Teaching Pedagogy

The traditional form of teaching in a University often involves lectures being given to large groups of students, accompanied by tutorials and workshops, with some independent study. However, there are several other modes of delivery that can also be very effective such as the flipped classroom and problem based learning. The teaching pedagogy implemented at the University is designed to give an overview of various methods of teaching and learning process for the better understanding of the students which are:

- Conventional Lecture-mode, however, the University promotes small group teaching to make lectures productive and engaging.
- Demos in practical classes for effective engagements of students.
- Flipped classroom approach by asking learners to watch video content before the class session, and devote in-class time to exercises, projects and discussions.
- Active learning to explore teaching and learning methods that put the student in charge of their own learning to work together to support each other's learning.
- Blended learning where traditional classroom teaching combined with online learning and independent study.
